

I live in Vermont where there is no high speed internet and it makes me very difficult to use videophone and other internet uses. I would like for FCC to push all areas even in very rural areas to give us an equal access with high speed internet.

As for the use of videophone, I would like to use relay services from a provider of my choice like I do with the phone. Restricting with one provider does not give an equal access to anyone who use the videophone.

Thank you.
